GREEN CONNECTION

ABOUT "THE GREEN CONNECTION" INITIATIVE

The Green Connection is an initiative of the Cultural Services of the Embassy of France in the United States. American high school students participate each year in an educational and scientific trip to France, organized around the theme of ecology.

Participants are selected through a national competition for which candidates submit proposals for local or personal projects in the field of environmental protection.

The goals of the program are:

- To promote exchanges between French and American youth beyond just language and culture
- To awaken and encourage the curiosity of young American high school students on the subject of environmental protection
- To inspire them in the pursuit of scientific vocations by giving them the opportunity to expand and share their ideas on the biggest environmental challenges of the 21st century
- To teach eco-friendly actions to the adults of tomorrow to ensure a healthy future for our planet
- To encourage youth participation in social issues by supporting concrete initiatives in the area of environmental protection
- To offer young Americans the opportunity for total immersion in the French language and culture

GREEN CONNECTION 2012: EXCHANGE FOR FOREST PROTECTION AND CONSERVATION.

The United Nations declared 2011 the International Year of Forests. It was an opportunity to discover, celebrate, present, protect and use forest ecosystems more sustainably. We have chosen to continue these educational efforts.

GoodPlanet.org

Good Planet Foundation (www.goodplanet.org), chaired by Yann Arthus-Bertrand, is the partner of the Green Connection 2012: Exchange for Forest Protection and Conservation. The foundation provides the teachers with the tools they need to increase their students' awareness about forest conservation. These resources are available online at: www.desforetsetdeshommes.org

This material is adaptable to a variety of teaching approaches and pedagogical activities, depending on the needs of the science or French class in question. The program can also build on the extensive educational resources of Earth Day Network (www.earthday.org), an international non-profit organization dedicated to environmental education and the environmental movement.

American high school students will be then invited to submit individual project proposals for local or personal initiatives for environmental protection. Each proposal will be in the form of a short audiovisual presentation (video clip). Proposals should show the student's interest in environmental issues and his or her commitment to environmental protection.

10 regional committees (Atlanta, Boston, Chicago, Houston, Miami, New York, New Orleans, San Francisco and Washington, D.C.) will each select the two best presentations from their respective regions. The students with the best proposals will be invited to participate in an all-expense-paid educational trip to France from July 2 to July 13, 2012.

The winning projects as well as a selection of the most original presentations will be published on The Green Connection program blog.
www.greenconnectionfrance.wordpress.com

The logistical organization of the trip will be arranged by the Cultural Services of the French Embassy in Washington, D.C. This trip will allow participants, interested in environmental issues and learning French, to deepen their knowledge in the field of environment and particularly in the field of forest protection and conservation. It will also provide them with tools and strengthen their interest in community service as well as in learning and practicing the French language.

GoodPlanet.org

Upon their return to the United States, the participants of the 2012 program will act as ambassadors and spokespeople for The Green Connection program. The returning students will communicate what they learned on their France trip in their local communities (in schools, universities, neighborhoods, organizations, etc.).

This community outreach will also provide 2012 participants with the opportunity to talk about and promote the third year of the program.

The Green Connection was inspired by today's youth and their growing sensibility to environmental protection. Keeping the environment safe and pristine for future generations is a major concern for youth of the 21st century, and with the education of young people at the heart of our mission, we aim to support their efforts by helping them acquire the knowledge and skills to make the best decisions for our planet's future.

2012 CONTEST THEME

Students are invited to submit individual project proposals for local or personal environmental protection initiatives. Each proposal must be in the form of a short audiovisual presentation (reporting, interviews, etc.) with a maximum length of 4 minutes.

The material submitted must be the student's original creation and the participant may only use video images that he/she recorded him/herself. Voice-over narration and interviews can be in French and/or English.

The audiovisual presentation must include:

- The name of the person submitting the presentation
- A description of the proposed initiative and how it will affect daily life in the community
- A demonstration of the student's interest in environmental issues and his/her commitment to environmental protection

Please note: You do not need to pay for special video-editing software to produce your contest video submission. We recommend using a simple program like Windows Movie Maker: <http://www.windowsmoviemakers.net/1>

REGISTRATION AND APPLICATION

DEADLINE: April 15, 2012

1st Prize: An all-expense-paid educational trip to France (July 2 to July 13, 2012)

Upon their return to the United States, the participants of the 2012 program will communicate what they learn on their trip to France in their local communities (in schools, universities, neighborhoods, organizations, etc.). This community outreach will give 2012 program participants the opportunity to talk about and promote the third year of the program:

Other Prizes: books

The first prize winner's teacher will also receive a 1-year subscription to the magazine Le Français Dans Le Monde

Who Can Participate?

This contest is open to all American high school students (9th-12th grades) who learn French at school.

GoodPlanet.org

Important Notice: The 1st prize winner must be at least 16 years old at the time of entry into the French territory.

How to Apply?

1. Teachers should post their students' contest entry videos on YouTube and provide the video links (URLs) on the contest application form. To create a YouTube account: http://www.youtube.com/create_account?next=%2F
2. Teachers must then fill out and submit the application form (one per class) by email.

Application forms must be submitted by APRIL 15, 2012.

See following pages for complete regional mailing addresses.

If you are unable to post your video on YouTube, please copy your presentation to a CD and mail it in with your application form and your check payment.

Les forêts

Des Forêts et des hommes, an exhibition by Good Planet Foundation features 70 large format photographs by some of the world's greatest photographers. Each powerful photograph is accompanied by a caption that describes the content of the photograph. The texts elaborate on and examine specific topics:

- Threat solutions
- Global policies and local initiatives
- Forestry issues are documented through the images and accompanying texts

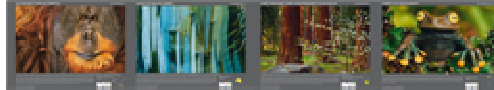

This exhibition offers the public the opportunity to experience a free beginner's journey through issues surrounding forests. The unique layout of the exhibition encourages visitors to wander through the photos and reflect on the importance of protecting our forests. <http://www.desforetsetdeshommes.org/fr>

Good Planet Foundation, chaired by Yann Arthus-Bertrand, is working to raise awareness and propose concrete solutions in favor of our planet and its inhabitants.

GoodPlanet.org

The foundation has been chosen by the United Nations to provide material for the International Year of Forests. The foundation's website is available in about 30 different languages and includes a 7-minute short movie by Yann Arthus-Bertrand as well as extensive information about world forests, etc.
